Claims Fleet Will be in Trim

To Engage Japs Again Off Port Arthur

FOUR MORE RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOATS REPORTED CAPTURED.

TOGO ATTACKS PORT ARTHUR

Alexieff Moves His Headquarters— New Russian Minister of War— The Far East News.

Chifu, China, Feb. 23.—The repairs on two of the vessels damaged by the torpedoes of the Japanese fleet are now nearly completed, and it is thought they will be ready for service very shortly. The Russians now claim their fleet at Port Arthur has in fighting trim, six battleships, three cruisers, ten torpedo boat destroyers, and 29 torpedo boats carrying in all 9,500 men and 800 guns.

It is stated that when Admiral Makaroff arrives to take charge of the fleet a sortie will be made from the harbor and a clash with the Japanese fleet thus invited.

The Russians are now in anything but a mood of despair. They fully expect they will regain their naval supremacy so ruthlessly torn from them by the sudden attack of the Japs.

London, Feb. 23.—There is little doubt in the minds of those in close touch with the position of the troops of the opposing powers in the far East that a clash between the land troops of Russia and Japan in Korea is imminent, and may even now have occurred. It has been known for some days that the two nations were rushing their troops with all speed toward the banks of the Yalu but little as to their exact location has been known.

Reliable dispatches at hand today, however, show that Russians have forces of scouts at An-Ju, about 75 miles south of Wiju in Korea, and that forces of Japanese scouts have arrived at Ping Yang. An-Ju and Ping Yang are close together, on the road to Pekin and skirmishes between these outposts may have already occurred. Behind the outposts the Russians and Japs are marching for position. "It is now practically certain that the first big land battle will occur in northern Korea.

The Japanese plans today are more apparent than at any time since hostilities commenced. The object of the Japanese land commanders is now plainly the occupation of northern Korea, and an attempt to drive back the Russian forces concentrating there.

Japanese cruisers are patrolling toward northwestern Korea, maintaining an open sea. Japanese transports are gathered at Chemulpo with heavy artillery aboard but none of this has been landed. These transports are waiting till the troops have taken position in the north, when a dash will be made by the northwestern coast and the needed artillery landed.

Authentic dispatches at hand today from Korea show that the Japanese are conducting their preparations with a precision and foresight almost unequalled. Despite the fact that the railroad between Chemulpo and Seoul is being utilized by the Japanese, the regular schedule and the regular passenger traffic have not in the least been interfered with. The troops are quiet and extremely well behaved so that the business and ordinary life of the inhabitants are proceeding almost as usual.

The plan of the officers in charge of the land movement is about as follows: Advance forces will be spread out establishing foraging depots, while the main bases will be kept at Chemulpo and Seoul. As the main forces advance small garrisons will be stationed at various places to insure a clear road behind and perfect communication with the bases of supply. The Japs are paying for everything as they go, buying ponies and all needed supplies and as a result money in the Korean capital is more plentiful than for some time past.

Dispatches from Chifu and other points indicate that another naval battle is imminent at Port Arthur. One report, vague and unconfirmed, has it that a clash has already occurred and that four Russian torpedo boats were captured by the Japs.

FOUR RUSSIAN BOATS CAPTURED

London, Feb. 23.—The Nagasaki correspondent of the Daily Telegraph cabling under date of February 22, reports that the Japanese squadron has captured four Russian torpedo boats at Port Arthur by using Russian signals.

This dispatch appears to confirm reports from various quarters of a fresh attack on Port Arthur by the Japanese.

ALEXIEFF MOVES HEADQUARTER

Yin Kow, Feb. 23.—Viceroy Alexieff and his full staff have just arrived at Harbin, where headquarters have been established.

TOGO ATTACKS PORT ARTHUR.

Tokio, Feb. 23.—It is reported here that Vice Admiral Togo has again attacked Port Arthur. It is impossible to confirm the statement, but the navy department says it has had no news from Togo. It is considered very probable that the vice admiral has made another attack on the Russians as he is engaged in blockading Port Arthur.

MINISTER OF WAR.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—General Sakharoff has been appointed minister of war, temporarily, to succeed General Kuropatkin, who has been placed in chief command of the Russian land forces.

The government continues to gather together all the money available for the war fund.

ACTIVITY PREVAILS.

Constantinople, Feb. 23.—The Porte is advised that the greatest activity prevails among the vessels of the Russian Black Sea fleet and at the dock yards of Sevastopol and Odessa. It is also stated that British warships are concentrating along the Greek archipelago. This activity, it is believed, is not due to Russia's desire to take her fleet east, but rather preparations by both powers to be in position to take a strong line in the event of a Balkan crisis.

TELEGRAPH DESTROYED.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—The Tokio correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiter reports that several hundred Russian cavalry have appeared at Anju, Korea, and have destroyed the telegraph lines. Anju is about 75 miles south of Wiju and 160 miles north of Seoul.

NOVEL

Method Used by Fire Chief to Prevent Big Explosion.

New York, Feb. 23.—(Bulletin)—Chief Croker saved three gas tanks containing 5,000,000 feet from explosion in a novel manner today. The tenements and factories on Fifth Street across from the tanks made the fire so hot that the water turned on the tanks was made into steam. Seeing he could not save the buildings Croker assembled the hose pipes and the water throwers turned the nozzles up into the air and made a wall of water between the tanks and buildings, completely shutting off the flames from the tanks. Cushman's big bakery, the National Umbrella factory and many tenements were destroyed. No lives were lost. The money loss is over $2,000,000.

PRETTY GIRL

And Young Sweetheart Conspired, It is Alleged, to Fleeced the Rich Old Contractor.

Muncie, Ind., Feb. 23.—In the trial of Walter Stonerock, of Montpelier, charged with carrying concealed weapons, held in court here, some sensational evidence was adduced, involving John Storor, a wealthy contractor of Indianapolis, who played the part, as he alleges, of victim in a conspiracy between Muncie Bales, a pretty girl, and Walter Stonerock, the girl's lover and rival of Storor.

The evidence showed that Storor, who is sixty years old, had become enamored of Miss Bales, and had made her several presents of money and valuables, among them being about $400 worth of diamonds. He had offered to start her in business here, it was stated, and she made an appointment with him to purchase the Chicago Hotel, but she failed to keep the appointment, and instead started out on a walk with Stonerock. Storor followed Stonerock and the girl, and had reached a point near the corner of High and Adams streets, when Stonerock, it is alleged, produced a gun which he shoved in the face of Storor. The fines of Stonerock amounted to $32.90, which he made arrangements to pay.

"I loved her and I guess I was taken in; that's about all there is to it," said Storor.

KRATZ' CASE

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 23.—In Judge Taylor's court this morning attorneys for Charles Kratz, the ex-councilman, brought back from Mexico on a charge of bribery, began the fight to keep him out of the penitentiary. Kratz wants a change of venue.

WOMAN'S SUICIDE.

New York, Feb. 23.—Finding herself in poverty by losses through speculation, Mrs. Maria Kunzmann, widow of Joseph Kunzmann, committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid. When her husband died seven years ago he left his widow a fortune of more than $500,000. Speculation robbed her of the fortune.

SOUTHERN SENTIMENT.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 23.—The sentiment of the south on the war was expressed here last night at a banquet of the Sons of the American Revolution. A toast for the success of the Japanese arms was proposed and drunk standing by all save three.

TURKISH MINISTER PREDICTS WAR IN THE BALKANS.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Chekib Bey, Turkish Minister in Washington, believes war in the Balkans is impending. The Minister says:

"Illness has prevented my transmitting heretofore an important communication that I received from my Government several days ago about the reported trouble in the Roumanian provinces. I hope to see the Secretary of State some time this week and have a conference with him on this subject. To correct the false impression which already I fear has gained ground in this country about the attitude of my country toward the reforms in Roumania, I shall give you the substance of the cablegram from my Foreign Office. It is to this effect:

"The Porte most strenuously denounces as maliciously false the reports that have been given wide circulation in certain European papers

VOTE

On Canal Treaty This Afternoon.

No Doubt That Measure Will be Ratified.

WITH ABOUT THIRTEEN VOTES TO SPARE.

THE END OF A GREAT CONTEST

Incidentally It Means Two Million Dollars in Fee For Lawyer Wm. Nelson Cromwell.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The Panama canal treaty will be ratified by the Senate late this afternoon with the necessary two-thirds vote and about 13 to spare. The vote will be about as follows: For the treaty 70, against the treaty 15, led by Bailey of Texas and Morgan of Alabama. This is the finish of one of the greatest legislative contests in the history of the country. Incidentally it means two million dollars fee for Wm. Nelson Cromwell, the attorney, of New York, who for five years has fought for his French clients for the adoption of the Panama route. He made a clean fight, used no lobbyists and gained his point on its merits alone.

The fee of $2,000,000 is the largest ever paid an attorney in the United States. Mr. Cromwell is the senior member of the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, of New York. He is a man in the prime of life about 50 years old, although his bushy gray hair and white mustache make him appear somewhat older. His ruddy face, keen eye and quick energetic movements however, all indicate his vigor. He is attorney for many of the large corporations, a director in more than twenty banks, trust companies and other concerns, besides being one of the private counsel for J. P. Morgan and the Goulds.

HOAR-FORAKER TILT

Washington, Feb. 23.—Senator Hoar made an extended speech on the isthmian canal question yesterday afternoon and in that address declared he had been misunderstood and misrepresented. Senator Foraker was mentioned among others who had criticized Hoar's first speech. Hoar and Foraker then had a tilt in which Hoar accused Foraker not only of having misrepresented him on the first occasion but of misrepresenting him today. Order was restored by the presiding officer.

In the House Mr. Burton of Ohio, strongly opposed the increase of the country's navy.

Washington, Feb. 23.—In committee of the whole the House today resumed consideration of the Naval appropriation bill. The reading of the bill for amendments which began yesterday, was continued.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The Panama canal treaty, the canal commission and the construction work formed the chief topics of discussion at the White House.

Senator Cullem, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, and who has the treaty in charge, called early and again assured the President of the ratification of the treaty by 70 votes, including not less than 15 Democratic votes.

President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad was also with the President discussing the President's intention to appoint Alfred Noble, the railroad's engineer, a member of the canal commission. Mr. Cassatt wished to make some arrangement by which Mr. Noble could serve both the government and the railroad.

The President signified his willingness.

Admiral Walker was with the President and the early beginning of construction work on a large scale was the topic discussed. The opinion was expressed that the first step would be the sanitation of the unhealthy cities of Colon and Panama.

CANAL COMMISSION.

Washington, Feb. 23.—John Garber, mining engineer of California, to whom President Roosevelt offered a place on the isthmian canal commission, has declined to serve. Of the seven members of the board, the following have been practically decided upon: Rear Admiral Walker, General George W. Davis, Frank J. Hecker of Detroit, and Alfred Noble of the Pennsylvania railway.

DICK'S SUCCESSOR

Washington, Feb. 23.—E. J. Lamson, reading clerk of the House, is regarded here as the probable successor of Dick in Congress. Two years ago he threatened to contest for the honor with Dick but did not press the matter after his reappointment in the House.

ACCUSED MAN

ASKS TO BE TAKEN FROM JAIL TO BE BAPTISED.

James McDonald, Charged With Murder of Miss Schaefer, Has His Request Denied.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 23.—James McDonald, who is in jail here accused of the murder of Miss Sarah Schaefer at Bedford, has made a request to the jail officers to be allowed to become a member of the Baptist church. He says that he wants to be immersed so that his soul may be saved. He wants to know if some way cannot be arranged for him to be taken to a church and baptized in accordance with the scripture. He says the Bible plainly says to him that he must be put under water.

Sheriff Thrasher is puzzled as to McDonald's pretended conversion. He fears that it is a ruse to get from behind the jail bars and escape. However, he spoke to an officer of the Baptist church this morning. It was decided that it was not wise to grant the request, and McDonald will not be baptized here, and he was so informed. McDonald takes more interest in his approaching hearing than he did a few days ago.

RAZOR

Used by Dugan to Kill Woman and Two Children.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 23.—(Bulletin)—During a fit after a prolonged spree, Jerry Dugan, a southern Indiana railroad section hand, this morning murdered Mrs. Benjamin Ramsey and her two children with a razor. It is said that he wanted Mrs. Ramsey to elope with him and that during the five years that he boarded with the Ramsey family he was infatuated with Mrs. Ramsey. She repelled his entreaties. Dugan confessed his crime to the police and after being locked up surrendered the bloody razor.

"LET HER GO

"I Am Ready," Shouted the Condemned Man and an Instant Later His Neck Was Broken.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 23.—James Martin was executed in the jail yard at 4:42 o'clock this morning for the murder of John Williams, a railroad brakeman in September 1902, whom he was attempting to rob. Charles Lemay, who was convicted with Martin for the same offense, escaped from jail last fall, and is still at large. Martin served his own hour for the execution and went to the gallows singing hymns. When the noose was adjusted by Sheriff Quinn he said: "Let her go, I am ready." His neck was broken.

THIRD

Regiment Goes to Panama.

Soldiers Sail Soon From New York City

INCLUDING MEN FOR BARRACKS AT COLUMBUS.

AFFAIRS DOWN IN SAN DOMINGO

Will be Investigated by the Federal Government Which May Act With Some Force

Washington, Feb. 23.—United States troops have been ordered to the Isthmus of Panama. Orders were issued today by the war department directing the Third United States infantry, stationed at Fort Thomas, Ky., Fort Sheridan, Ills., and Columbus, Ohio, barracks to prepare immediately for such duty. The soldiers will sail from New York within a few days. Lieut. Col. Thomas C. Woodbury who will be entitled to promotion to the colonelcy soon has been assigned to the command of the Third infantry and will go with the regiment.

Troops will be stationed at Panama, Colon and at various points along the canal route. They will relieve the marines who have been on duty since early last November. Some of the marines will be withdrawn to Guantanamo, and the rest will be brought home.

SAN DOMINGO AFFAIRS.

Washington, Feb. 23.—It now looks as if Uncle Sam will do something in San Domingo. To pave the way for action Assistant Secretary Loomis of the state department, is to go there and patch up a report to provide the excuse for executive interference.

This action is in part no doubt merited, because of insults to American shipping and other interests offered by the Santo Domingo insurgents. It may be the United States will be forced to stand as a protectorate for law and order. United States Minister Powell's reports to the State Department for the past six months have been a series of accounts of vandalism. At Samana last month a band of insurgents attacked the United States Consulate and removed two refugees who had sought shelter there. At San Domingo the insurgents fired deliberately upon American seamen and killed Machinist Johnson. Telephone and telegraph lines belonging to Americans who have ranches in the Dominican Republic have been persecuted by insurgents, who have killed cattle and offered every possible insult to American subjects.

The latest insult to this government is found in the case of the Clyde liner New York, which was fired on near Santo Domingo while trying to enter the harbor conveyed by the United States warship Newark. The cruiser immediately opened fire on the insurgent stronghold and landed 200 marines, who put the insurgents to flight. An American bugler named Painter was seriously wounded in the engagement.

INVENTOR

Who Failed in Effort to Originate a System to Beat the Races Ends His Life.

New York, Feb. 23.—After having tried in vain to originate a system for beating the races, William Thornburg, chief examiner for the Brooklyn building department and an expert mathematician, committed suicide at his home in Brooklyn by inhaling gas.

His body was found by the police. Near it was a note in which Thornburg said:

"I have decided to end my life. It was my own fault. My wife was in no way to blame." Thornburg's wife left him a week ago.

PRINCESS ALICE

Princess Alice of Albany, the latest royal bride, a pretty and alert looking young lady, only 24 years of age, is the daughter of the late Leopold, Duke of Albany, and was a ward. She is regarded as one of the most desirable of the matrimonial prizes of Europe and as she is a great favorite of King Edward. The man who has been chosen for her is a handsome young man in Europe.

HER FIRST PROPOSAL

By KEITH GORDON

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

It was the softest of spring days, and Mowbray and Miss Farrar strolled through the greenery of the park with the languid abstraction born of the first warm weather and a friendship of several years' standing. Though their eyes drank in the beauty of the scene about them—the great stretches of greensward, the trees and bushes that were bursting into the tender green of the season as into a sort of silent song—neither of them was thinking of it.

Miss Farrar, indeed, was living over other days inevitably brought back by the warm breeze and the smell of growing things—other springtimes when life meant only the beautiful possibility of love. And Mowbray was thinking of her and wondering if by any chance it would be worth while to tell her, for in spite of her unquestionable attractiveness he could not help feeling that he would find it hard to look into those calm, clear eyes and talk of love. Yet he was neither cowardly nor inexperienced. He simply had a natural shrinking from being regarded with suppressed amusement by the woman he loved. And in her apparent immunity from such emotions that was what he feared. She would in all probability only laugh her light, frank laugh and say, "Nonsense, Clark; don't be silly!"

He sent a speculative glance toward her as she walked beside him looking off into the distance with the preoccupied air of a woman whose whole mind was given to some engrossing and persistent thought.

"Let us sit for awhile," she proposed as they reached the top of a knoll where, under a solitary tree, a bench invited relaxation. Sifting the action to the word, she seated herself comfortably with her elbows placed defiantly on the back of the bench, an attitude peculiar to her aggressive moods and one which Mowbray had learned to recognize as premonitory of an intention to talk things out to a finish. He wondered what it would be this time, for he had long since dropped into his role of mentor.

He waited patiently with eyes that roved carelessly over the mansions on the far side of Fifth avenue, which in turn sent back a well bred stare, knowing that her feelings would soon reach the point of overflow. At last she broke the silence.

"Do I look to you like a person selected by fate to be distinguished among women—disagreeably distinguished, I mean?" she demanded, turning toward him with a directness which challenged in a manner intended to convey that he was making an expert examination.

"No," he admitted, "I can't say that you do—that is"—He stopped rather vaguely.

"Oh, now don't try to soften the truth," she interrupted quickly. "I'm after facts, and I am not going to lay anything you may say against you." "I haven't the least idea what it is about, but I am glad that there is going to be no animosity," Mowbray observed politely. Then he settled himself to listen. It was one of his virtues that he never missed his cue.

Her next words came out rather abruptly.

"I'm not especially plain, do you think?"

Her tone was deprecating, but she turned her face toward him in a manner as impersonal as if she were calling his attention to the landscape. Then she continued impartially:

"That is, I suppose I would be classed as 'fair to middling.'"

He nodded assent with a gleam of mischief in his eye.

"To tell you the truth"—her tone had dropped into the personal, confidential key—"I'm not at all conceited about my looks, but I've always flattered myself that I am rather interesting."

The statement ended with a rising inflection which made it a question, and it was evident that she was awaiting his decision with some anxiety.

"Rather interesting, I think we may say," he agreed suavely.

"And I'm sure I'm affectionate and fairly good tempered and—and—"

Mowbray encouraged her by a nod.

"—and domestic."

"I shall have to take your word for that."

"Well, I am domestic. I know I am! So I want you to explain to me"—her voice was growing tumultuous—"but first promise on your honor that you'll never tell how it is that I've reached the age of thirty-three without ever having had a proposal."

Mowbray threw himself back and roared, while her arms came down off the bench and she dropped her face upon her hands and sat looking at him with the puzzled air of a pupil at the feet of a master.

"When you're done laughing," she began with dignity.

"Pardon, dear, a thousand pardons!"

He had never called her that before, and there was something in his voice which bespoke a new hope and confidence, but she was too engrossed in her pursuit of self knowledge to notice.

"I forgot to say that I'm sensible. Men always like that, you know. Anyway, they pretend to."

She finished in a way that suggested that she had her doubt of their sincerity. With a mighty effort her companion swallowed his mirth and prepared to face the situation with her.

"Is it because you haven't wanted any one to ask you?" he inquired diplomatically.

"No, indeed!"

"And no man has ever told you that he loved you?" he murmured in a thoughtful tone. "Strange!"

"Well—now—I didn't say just that, you know!"

There was a faint suspicion of a blush on Miss Farrar's smooth cheeks, but her glance met Mowbray's with its usual unswerving honesty.

"Men have told me that they loved me—several of them! But that's not a proposal, you know, any more than it's a purchase when I say that I adore a string of pearls at Tiffany's!"

"A—ah!"

The education was full of enlightenment. Mowbray was beginning at last to understand things that had always puzzled him, as his next question showed.

"Would it be impertinent to ask how you have received these declarations?"

"Why, I just listened! You see, it's embarrassing. It makes one feel so terribly conscious."

"What about the man?" Mowbray asked quietly.

"Doesn't it occur to you that perhaps he might need a little encouragement—that perhaps he might be a trifle conscious too?"

For a moment there was silence between them. The point of view was utterly new to Miss Farrar, and she was obviously impressed by it.

"I never thought of that," she admitted slowly. "I thought that sort of thing was so in a man's line—his meter."

She laughed a bit ruefully.

A squirrel darted swiftly across the grass and, turning its head jauntily to one side, fixed a bright, inquiring eye upon them. Then, with a saucy wave of its tail, it scurried away.

"I have it," said Mowbray. "I have it! Learn from the squirrel! Lightness, airiness, coquettishness! Don't you see what I mean?" And he looked at her teasingly.

But she was not to be diverted. "I am serious," she assured him. "There's always a reason for everything, and there must be a reason for this. There's Alice Nixon. She's not so awfully pretty. I heard her say that she had had nineteen proposals!"

Miss Farrar's voice was touched with awe. Then a skeptical thought seized her.

"Still—she's from the south!" she added, and her tone implied that an allowance should be made for the fact.

Mowbray bit his lip.

"Then there's her sister—just an ordinarily nice girl—follows with fifteen. Marion Pierce owns up to a dozen, and Beth Garrett—dear, homely Beth—acknowledges six!"

I asked her because I specially wanted to find out. Perhaps you can imagine how queer it makes me feel."

"What do you say upon such occasions?" demanded Mowbray, watching the squirrel that was again eyeing them from a distance.

There was a palpable pause before Miss Farrar replied. But at last her straightforwardness prevailed.

"Sometimes I shake my head and look rather shocked. Then they think that I disapprove of such conversations—think I'm noble, you know! At other times I laugh and say, 'I have never had one'—in a tone which implies just the reverse."

She finished this confession and looked at Mowbray out of the corner of her eyes in a way that drove the last vestige of fear out of his mind. This naive woman, the person whose dignity and coldness he had stood aloof from in absolute embarrassment for so long! He could have laughed at the absurdity of it. Why had she never shown him her real self before?

"I think I shall propose to you," he remarked deliberately.

For a second she looked surprised, and then her eyes danced.

"Let it be in your best style," she pleaded. "Remember, it's my first, and I fear it may be my last too!"

He leaned toward her and looked straight into her eyes.

"It will be your last, undoubtedly!" His voice was low and tense. For a long moment he looked at her—looked in a way that first made her small ears burn and then troubled her clear gaze, which wavered and fell.

"I love you, dear," he said simply.

"And I think you know the rest. Tell me that you do."

Her cheeks were hot and her lips trembled. A strong hand reached out and took hers in a masterful way, and she suddenly knew that something which she had never even dreamed—was true.

"But I asked you!" she moaned when at last she recovered something of her wonted serenity. "I positively asked you!"

"You encouraged me," he corrected, "and that's what they usually do, only your method was brutally direct."

It was when she began to flush again that he added, "I shall always have something to tease you about, dearest."

And the squirrel, which had been watching them in the lingering hope that they might possibly have brought him dust, like sensible people, gave up in disgust and scurried away.

Fontenelle's Presence of Mind.

The distinguished French author, Fontenelle, was fond of asparagus cooked in butter. Cardinal Dubois was equally in love with the vegetable served with white sauce.

Being once invited to dine together at the house of a friend the effort was made to gratify the palates of both by preparing half the asparagus with butter and half with white sauce. While the preparations were in progress the news was brought in that the cardinal was dead.

Fontenelle did not wait a moment. Rushing to the door of the kitchen, he cried to the chef: "Jean, Jean! You may cook all the asparagus in butter."

WOMEN'S CLUB HOMES

Boston's New Century

AFTER the club women of the smaller towns showed them how, ladies' organizations in the large cities began also to build homes for themselves. One of the handsomest and most completely appointed feminine clubhouses, one which might be a model for all such structures in suburban places, is to be at Orange, N. J. Its estimated cost, when completed, is $50,000.

But in villages and small towns women may build clubhouses satisfactorily at much less cost than $50,000, keeping in view still the general idea of the Orange structure. Its plan comprises a two story and basement building. In the basement are the heating apparatus, the kitchen and its appurtenances. The first floor has a general assembly hall, holding 600 persons; also committee rooms and a library. On the second floor provision is made for social entertainments. There is a large ballroom or dining room, with china cabinets, enterer's room and more committee rooms.

The Orange Women's club expects that when its house is finished it will be able to let its halls for occasional entertainments like concerts, lectures and social affairs, thus bringing a considerable annual sum in rentals. The demand for semiprivate halls, conducted under refined auspices, is greater every year with the rapidly growing intelligent and well to do class in America. In incurring debt for constructing a woman's clubhouse its promoters may safely take into account reasonable receipts from this source.

There are two chief ways of raising money to erect a clubhouse. One is to form a stock company and get the necessary funds through subscriptions. Another way is to borrow money outright and trust to the infinite ingenuity of the feminine brain to pay it. For nearly a thousand years women have been able to pay off church debts for men—it would be a pity if now they cannot raise cash for a woman's club home.

The Boston New Century club of women was aided in the construction of its splendid home by the generosity of Hon. Elijah S. Converse, a large brained, chivalrous man, who believed in women's clubs. The New Century club was composed from the beginning of that highest and noblest human blend—the progressive and the conservative. Julia Ward Howe was its first president. It numbers among its members many of the famous literary and intellectual women of New England.

The first step toward getting the clubhouse was to form the Women's Clubhouse corporation, of which Mrs. Isabella A. Potter was made president. She has just concluded her sixth term of service in this capacity. Mrs. Potter was indefatigable in her enthusiasm and her labors. To begin, she was a clear headed woman of exact mental habit, and she learned the business of building a clubhouse and raising the money to pay for it as she went along. More than all, she is of harmonious temperament and will have no squabbles, great or small, in her atmosphere. One of her reports she puts the operations of herself and her sister directors of the corporation into words worthy of the thoughtful consideration of every clubwoman. Mrs. Potter writes:

"Your directors have been a faithful, able, earnest, harmonious body of workers. Their purpose has been twofold—first, to develop the property, that clubs might be accommodated and find a congenial home here; second, to make a good business investment, that every stockholder may get 4 per cent on the money invested in the stock of this corporation."

The clubhouse was called the New Century building. It is worth $275,000, with a debt that can be paid without trouble. This is because through shrewd management the building began to pay dividends from rentals the day it was opened. That is what woman is able to do in a business way when she sets her head to it.

The structure itself is a substantial five story building in the club heart of Boston. Its various beautiful halls are named from prominent club members. There are the Julia Ward Howe hall, the Abba Gould Woolson hall, the Isabella A. Potter hall and others. The dedication of the New Century club home was a great occasion to New England feminine clubdom. That good friend of woman, Governor Bates of Massachusetts, honored himself and the ladies by being present and making a speech. MARY EDITH DAX.

Deafness in Fashion.

It may be a solace to deaf women to know their ailment is fashionable, says the New York Press. Queen Alexandra is totally deaf, the Duchess of Marlborough is hard of hearing and one of Mrs. Ogden Mills' eardrums is out of commission. It is said Miss Beatrice Mills also is suffering from deafness, which is unusual in a girl so young. So far ear trumpets have been tabooed, but Mrs. Griswold Gray of Paris, another woman of fashion who is deaf, defies precedent and carries about with her an elaborate device made of hard rubber. Sitting with her sister, Mrs. James A. Burden, in the Burden opera box, Mrs. Gray got out her hearing apparatus, and it was offered to the guests—one at a time, of course. In this way there was no occasion for shouting. When Mrs. Gray was ready to go home her ear trumpet was packed away in a plush bag. Some persons say Mrs. Gray takes pride in her deafness.

Mushrooms in Reach of All.

Mushrooms can be grown in America equal in quality to the French product and in a few years will be as cheap as any garden vegetable, and the importation from France, which costs America many millions annually, will perhaps stop entirely, according to Dr. B. M. Duggar of Missouri university, who has announced the results of several years' experiments, says a Columbia (Mo.) special to the Chicago Tribune. He has discovered that the tissue from mushroom heads furnish planting material for a new crop and when planted in a bed of rich soil prepared for the purpose will produce a crop that can be harvested within six weeks.

MRS. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT.

Mrs. Catt, who succeeded Miss Susan B. Anthony as president of the National American Woman Suffrage association in 1901, is one of the ablest workers for woman suffrage in the United States. She has lectured in nearly every state in the Union. She is a native of Wisconsin, and her maiden name was Carrie Lane.

MISS HALLOWAY OF CHICAGO

...By MARY WOOD

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

She was so decidedly petite that even when she drew her figure to its greatest height the assumption of dignity was laughable. But her eyes sparkled dangerously as she faced the bellboy.

The bellboy was impressed. He eyed the door as if meditating escape before she proceeded to stronger methods. "Now, see here," she exclaimed beligerently, "this is the third note I have written to the office, and I want a reply this time."

"If you would go down to the desk," the bellboy insinuated apologetically, "Mr. Parker—"

"No, I will not go down to the desk," Miss Holloway interrupted decidedly. "That head clerk Parker, or whatever name he answers to, shall come up here or I will know the reason why."

The bellboy departed promptly. "And, by the way," she called after him, "just bustle along some telegraph blanks on your way back. I have a few things to say to my father and some of his friends concerning the lack of accommodations at the Great Eastern."

"Oh, Belle, Belle," wailed Mrs. Holloway, whose ample form had collapsed in one corner of a red plush sofa, "how can you make such a disturbance? Now, if your father was only here. But the two of us alone, without a protector!" And she rolled her eyes distractedly.

"Protector, fiddlesticks!" said the energetic Miss Holloway. "Have you no spirit, mother?" She began to pace the floor excitedly. "Would you be treated as a nobody—yep, the wife of Thomas P. Holloway? Consider your position."

Mrs. Holloway doubtless considered her position—she was absolutely at the mercy of her daughter's scathing tongue; therefore she maintained a discreet silence.

"They must be taught the deference due to us, the Holloways of Chicago," said the girl. She was very young and possessed of the follies as well as the graces of youth.

The bellboy now reappeared, holding out a handful of telegraph blanks like a yellow flag of truce. "Mr. Parker," he averred, "he says—he's coming."

Miss Holloway seized upon the blanks and flung herself into a chair beside the writing table. "There will probably be ample time to get off the telegrams before he comes. Things don't quickstep at the Great Eastern."

"But, Belle," Mrs. Holloway protested after the bellboy had closed the door in reverential fashion, "had you not better slip on another waist. Mr. Parker—"

"Mr. Parker," her daughter interrupted superciliously, "is a hotel clerk, a servant. This dressing sack is good enough for him."

She dashed off a telegram and read it aloud reflectively:

Dear Dad—We are being shamefully treated at the Great Eastern. If things are not remedied we will change to the Grand tonight. But don't worry. I am running this affair, and you can bet on me. ARABELLA HALLOWAY.

"I think that will make things hot for the Great Eastern," she said triumphantly. She did not hear the knock at the door nor its noiseless opening. Her mother's voice startled her, "Belle, here is Mr. Parker, but remember—"

Mrs. Holloway's voice trailed off into a deprecating silence. Miss Holloway straightened up in her chair with the laudable pride of a judge about to confer sentence.

"Mr. Parker," she said impressively, "I have called you here to complain of the treatment to which we have been subjected by this hotel." She began deliberately enough, but the words soon tumbled over each other in her vehemence. "How dare you," she cried, "how dare you put us into this stuffy back room, an eight dollar a day room, when we have always been accustomed to an eighteen dollar suite? Do you know who we are—the Holloways of Chicago? Is not our money as good as or better than other people's?"

The clerk remained silent. And now for the first time Miss Holloway looked up—far up—and encountered the serene gaze of his brown eyes.

Mr. Parker, the clerk, was tall—unusually tall. But it was not merely his inches which gave authority of bearing. It was his self confidence, his mental poise. Intuitively Miss Holloway of Chicago realized that here was a man who would always be the master of circumstances no matter how adverse the contrivings of fate. Her judicial complacency vanished, and shame, hot checked and defiant, stood as a calprit at the bar, for a twinkling lurked in the cool depths of the brown eyes as he said easily:

"I can agree with you, Miss Holloway of Chicago, but only in part. Your money is as good as that of other people, but no better. At the Great Eastern first come must be first served, and that," with a half bow, "is why we have been forced to give this room to Miss Holloway of Chicago."

His tone was courteous, but the girl felt the sting of underlying reproach. It was a new experience for her. All her twenty years had not discovered a person who should dare to cross her. The great T. P. Holloway himself lacked the necessary courage, or, rather, he openly encouraged her willingness as a reincarnation of his own indomitable spirit. As for Mrs. Holloway, she was always a minus quantity on such occasions as demanded firmness. She preferred to be comfortably seated and wring her hands gently. Tears came easily and in nowise interfered with her heart action or gradual increase of avoirdupois.

Now she looked entreatingly at her daughter and murmured, "Oh, Belle, don't, don't!"

Miss Holloway did not hear. Her world seemed falling about her ears. For the first time the shameful helplessness of her sex overcame her. But woman's wit came to her aid. Her lips trembled piteously, and two large tears ran down her cheeks.

This was a new method of warfare. The redoubtable Mr. Parker stood aglaze; then, as became a prudent general, threw out scout lines.

"Really, Miss Holloway," he said soothingly, "the whole thing is a trifle which we have foolishly exaggerated. In the morning you will laugh at your fabled grievances."

But still the girl's head was hidden in her folded arms, and her shoulders heaved. Mrs. Holloway sobbed, swaying comfortably back and forth. "If your father were only here," she wailed.

Mr. Parker looked from one to the other despairingly. He was a young man. A woman's tears are sacred—to the chivalry of youth. He cast discretion to the winds and capitulated.

"Don't cry, Miss Holloway," he implored; "please don't. I think that perhaps I can arrange the matter. A personal friend of mine has one of the suits. Perhaps for you—yes, I am sure I can arrange it."

"On your word and honor?" asked Miss Holloway of Chicago in a muffled tone.

"On my word of honor," he promised recklessly.

The girl lifted her head and laughed. She had not been crying at all. "You can stop your crying now, mother," she said cheerfully; "it is all over with."

She turned to the astonished Mr. Parker and extended her hand frankly. "And since you have acceded to my request," she said sweetly, "let me apologize for having asked in—well—rather peremptory fashion. It is a way I have, unfortunately. course your promise holds good?"

"Of course," replied Mr. Parker a trifle stiffly. He could not avoid taking her outstretched hand. "Of course," he repeated more heartily as some mesmeric influence radiated from her finger tips to his. There was added respect as well as admiration in the brown eyes. He recognized her powers as a strategist.

Miss Holloway laughed. "I won, but I would not have if you had not been a gentleman. Mamma and I are very pleased to meet you, even in this informal fashion."

Mrs. Holloway beamed upon them. Peace and harmony were essential in her scheme of things.

And peace and harmony—and Mr. Parker—attended her and her daughter for the next few weeks. Mrs. Holloway beamed, Miss Holloway was radiant, Mr. Parker was assiduous—so assiduous, in fact, that Thomas P. Holloway on his advent on the scene felt called upon to interfere.

He did not hesitate, but Mr. Parker spoke first. It is a way youth has. And he did not mince matters. He struck straight from the shoulder.

"Mr. Holloway, I love your daughter; she loves me. We are going to be married. Have we your approval?"

"The mischief!" ejaculated the astounded T. P. Holloway. "Why, you're nothing but a hotel clerk. My daughter—"

Words failed him.

Mr. Parker was quite unmoved. "She does not object," he said easily. "Some day I shall own this hotel, then you will not object."

T. P. Holloway glared at him. "I will," he snorted. "And the sooner you take yourself off the better it will be."

There is Belle to be considered," Mr. Parker insinuated gently. "She usually has her own way."

T. P. Holloway weakened visibly. "Yes; she usually does," he repeated more calmly.

And the matter of her marriage proved no exception to the rule. She did. And that is how Miss Holloway of Chicago became Mrs. Parker of New York.

Realistic.

Actors frequently receive unexpected proof of the realism of their art. This story, which is reported from a Chicago theater, is like the story of the artist who painted a fire so vividly that his servant threw water on it.

"Hamlet" was the play. In the gallery two small newsboys were watching with breathless interest. The last act was drawing to a close. The dual almost dragged the boys from their chairs.

Before their eyes the queen was poisoned. Laertes killed, the king killed, Hamlet killed. On the final tragedy the curtain started down. The audience was spellbound.

In the gallery sounded a clatter and crash as one of the boys bolted for the door.

"Come on, Jimmy!" he shouted back to his "pal." "Hustle up! De'il be extras out on dis."

To him the acting had been at least as real as news.—Youth's Companion.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

makes pale, thin children fat and chubby. Overcomes wasting tendencies and brings back rosy cheeks and bright eyes.

It's surprising how quickly children respond to Scott's Emulsion. It contains just the element of nourishment their little bodies need. They thrive on it.

Even a few drops in the baby's bottle have a noticeable effect for good. Nothing better than Scott's Emulsion for growing children.

Why do substitutes for Scott's Emulsion cost less? Because they're worth less. With one you wait in vain for the benefits you had looked for. In Scott's Emulsion you get them. It never disappoints. That's worth the few cents difference in cost.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish form after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

McGray, near of the Swisher Cigar factory, on West Main street, and hereafter the firm will be known as Stunt & McGray. They will, in addition to doing a regular blacksmith business, carry a line of buggies.

Treat Seed Potatoes for Disease.
Recent investigations made at the Ohio Experiment Station show that a disease, heretofore but partially recognized, injures potato tops severely at times. This is the Potato Rosette and this disease appears to be general. Seed treatment in 1903 has increased the yield where the disease prevailed from 25 to 125 per cent on alight crop. Bulletin 145, just published, gives the second series of results in treating for this trouble. Formalin at the rate of 1 pint in 30 gallons of water, is the solution used. Immerse the seed potatoes in this for 2 hours, after which the tubers may be dried and cut for planting. This bulletin will be sent to all citizens of the state who may apply for it. Address: The Ohio Experiment Station, Wooster, O.

Bound Over.
A young man who gave the name of Coppington, of Chicago, was bound over to the grand jury today by Mayor Crilly in the sum of $100 for breaking into a B. & O. boxcar.

The City Water.
Mayor A. J. Crilly today called a special meeting of the Board of Health for Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in his office to consider the water question.

Field's Minstrels Tonight.
At noon today the Al G. Field's minstrel company headed by Mr. Field himself, gave a parade about town and the splendid band carried by the company gave a concert at the northwest corner of the square. The advance seat sale is large. A full house is assured, and the people are sure to get the best things in minstrelsy.

THE RAILWAYS
B. & O. REPORT SHOWS EFFECT OF THE BAD WEATHER.
An Employee Who Can Talk 65,000 Words an Hour—Budget of Local and General News.

The monthly report of earnings of the Baltimore & Ohio is cited as evidence of the tremendous loss which the railroads are suffering by reason of the continued cold and stormy weather. The report submitted for the last month shows a loss of $450,000 in gross, a heavy gain in expenses, and a net loss of $784,000. The losses compare with an average gross gain of $450,000, and a net of $3,500 in the previous six months or the company's present fiscal year.

This Man Can Talk Some.
The B. & O. railroad has in its employ at the general offices in Baltimore a man who probably enjoys the distinction of being the champion talker of the world. Mr. Lloyd Conway, who, it is claimed, can rattle off 65,000 words an hour, and keep it up for eight hours. His ability to do this has come by long practice. His duties are to read off checks and he keeps two clerks busy checking off the pay rolls and ten clerks busy writing out the checks. It was in this work he acquired his lightning-like speed. With this celerity of speech he is also endowed with a musical voice so that it is a pleasure to listen to him.

Brakeman R. L. Wills is on the sick list.
Conductor Donovan has been marked up for service after having been off for several days.
Brakeman Leyda, who has been off duty for some days on account of sickness, has recovered and returned to work.
Fireman Edward Hollister, who has been off duty for several days on account of a severe attack of rheumatism, is reported as being considerably better at this writing.

Brakeman J. N. Chester has been marked up for service after having been off for a few days.
H. H. Harris chief clerk in the yard office, who has been on the sick list for several days is considerably better at this writing.
Brakeman R. H. Fuller after a short absence has returned to work.
Owing to the high waters the false work at the Alum creek bridge, near Columbus, is giving the railroads considerable trouble again.

Brakeman Pollock is reported on the sick list.
Charles Reel, Jr., lately connected with the B. & O. round house, has just been promoted to the position of fireman. He purchased the finest pair of shoes that could be brought in the city to wear on duty on the steam engine. Mr. Reel says that nothing is too good for a railroad man to wear while in the discharge of his duties.

The net loss sustained by the property owners affected by the Baltimore fire is a great deal heavier than at first estimated. It turns out that the total insurance carried does not exceed $22,000,000. The buildings and other property destroyed represent a loss of considerably more than $100,000,000. Some estimates still go as high as $150,000,000. This means a tremendous loss, and but for the fact that there is a large reserve of wealth at Baltimore the city would be almost ruined. As it is, however, preparations for rebuilding the burned district already are well under way, and Baltimore promises to be a more substantial, as it certainly will be a more beautiful, city than before the great fire. It is evident that the property owners of Baltimore will more generally patronize the fire insurance companies after this than they appear to have done before.

SENATOR MORGAN'S GREAT PERFORMANCE.

(Pittsburg Post.)
Senator Morgan has made his last speech on the isthmian canal question, so it is announced from Washington. When on Saturday last the veteran Alabama statesman delivered his farewell address on this subject he put in a period of what is in many respects the most remarkable forensic effort in the history of the United States. In point of fact, no parallel to it can be found in the parliamentary history of the world.

If all that Senator Morgan has spoken from the floor of the Senate on the canal proposition, from the inception of that theme several years ago to last Saturday were compiled, it would fill many volumes of large size. And in all this great mass of printed matter not one silly or illogical utterance would be found, no ungrammatical sentence would shock the sensibilities of the grammarian, no unpatriotic word would offend the most sensitive patriot.

Senator Morgan is nearly eighty years old, so that even the purely physical part of his performance must be regarded as marvelous. This fine old statesman, who in character, culture and real patriotism recalls the best days of the Republic, has lost the fight for the route he is conscientiously convinced is the proper, if not the only practical, one, but his countrymen respect him all the more because he had the courage and resource to wage his fight to the bitter end.

If he had done nothing more throughout his long and honorable career in the Senate than contend for the construction by this Government of a canal connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans his name would live in the history of the country, for the last analysis shows that it was Senator Morgan's firm and intelligent advocacy of the cause which advanced the canal proposition to a place in the fixed and determined policies of the United States.

A SIMPLE QUESTION.

Newark People Are Requested to Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen of Newark more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:
Mrs. George Graff, of No. 25 Spencer street, says: "I had had a terrible bad back, which successfully resisted all efforts made to relieve it in the way of medicines and plasters. It was just across the loins, where the greatest strain falls, so that I could not get up when I was down, I awoke in the morning scarcely able to lift my body. As I moved about at my household work I was often in actual torture. For three months I suffered all the time, until one day a neighbor gave me a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills. I took them and the benefit was so apparent that I sent to Crayton's drug store and procured a box. Before very long I discarded the plasters, the kidney secretions looked clear and natural, and I had not a pain in my head or back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute. 123

PITH AND POINT.

Some people are able to talk a great deal and say nothing unkind. Only a few of these.

People who are agreeing to succeed are so much more agreeable than those who have succeeded.

A great many people speak of "wanting to do what's right," as if they have a monopoly of the desire.

We have noticed that when a man wears an unusually big diamond stud his wife wears no jewelry at all.

Our idea of an original man is one who can tell how long he has been married without adding that it seems longer.—Acheson Globe.

THE MIKADO'S ARMY

ONE OF THE MOST PERFECT MILITARY MACHINES IN THE WORLD.

Offered by Skilled Captains, and Every Private a Patriot—Nerve of the Japanese Soldier—The Wealth of the Nation.

The Japanese army, universally acknowledged to be one of the most complete pieces of military machinery in existence, is hardly less renowned than is the superb navy. The war department, under the supervision of Count Masatake Teruchi, is amply equipped with leaders of proved ability, men who have won their way to the top by trial on the field of battle.

One of the foremost of Japan's war captains is Count Iwao Oyama. Teruchi's chief of staff, who was formerly minister of war. General Kodama, assistant chief of staff, who has been appointed commander in the field, is a noted fighter. He distinguished himself in the late war with China and was at one time governor of Formosa. Other conspicuous military leaders are Major General Nadzu, Major General Fukushima and Field Marshal Yamagata, not to mention General Katsuma, the present prime minister of the empire.

Whether all these will take the field is problematical, but it is certain Generals Nadzu and Fukushima will have important commands. Count Oyama, it is thought, will remain in the war office, where Field Marshal Yamagata's advice will be in demand.

The Japanese soldier is probably the most patriotic fighter in the world today. Faithfulness to duty is one of his chief characteristics. Indeed to the Japanese mind there is no glory to be compared to dying for one's country. His nerve never deserts him. At the siege of Port Arthur in 1904 one of the Japs managed to get on top of a wall and then, not hesitating, dropped down on the other side among the enemy and drew the bars of a gate, which he opened to his comrades, who had been sure they would never see him again.

During the same war a young officer who had distinguished himself in Korea.

GENERAL COUNT IWAO OYAMA

rea by bravery in battle was given important dispatches to take home as a mark of special favor. So chagrined was he at the prospect of being absent while fighting was going on that he committed hara kari. He was quite unable to appreciate the honor his emperor had conferred upon him. His idea was that fighting was the only thing. Bearing dispatches seemed only work for coolies.

Forecasters of the probable outcome of the war between Japan and Russia have frequently affirmed, while admitting Japan's military strength, that her resources would not stand the strain of a prolonged war. In view of the real facts of the case this does not seem to be a good estimate. The Japs.

SECRETARY TAFT AT HIS DESK.

Judge Taft, the new head of the war department, is six feet tall and weighs about 220 pounds. A new desk and new chairs were made for his use, the old ones in the war office being too small.

anese people will lay down every dollar of their savings in their country's cause.

Nor is Japan's wealth solely sentimental. Relatively she may be said to be one of the richest countries of the world, surpassing every other except France in the rigid economies of life and in the proportion of savings to the earnings of the people. It is only in the aggregate of her wealth that she is distanced by the nations of the west.

Japan's army is a homogeneous machine. Its quartermaster and commissary departments are said by experts to be simply perfection, and the whole army moves like clockwork, so nicely is it adjusted. Four hundred thousand such soldiers in such an organization can give even gigantic Russia a fight to be remembered.

And Japan has prepared for war not only with cannon and ammunition, but with information. Some Englishmen in Vladivostok had a Japanese "boy" for many months. Last year, much to their surprise, they met him in Tokyo in the uniform of a Japanese officer. And there are many such. As peddlers and barbers they have swarmed in Manchuria for several years.

General Count Oyama, chief of staff, is a nobleman of the second class. He is tall and stout and a fine specimen of the Japanese soldier. His military career has been brilliant, and he has seen much active service. He commanded the army that put down the rebellion of 1876, and for this he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant general. Later he was appointed minister of war, and in 1894, while holding that office, he visited New York.

General Oyama's wife, formerly Miss Stenatz Yamakawa, was educated at Vassar. She came to this country in 1872 and spent eleven years here.

Quadrupedal Cure For Appendicitis.

The medical journals of Berlin report that some remarkable cures of mild cases of appendicitis are being made by a new method of treating the disease before the knife is needed, says the New York World.

This is nothing less than to require the patient to walk on all fours for twenty minutes four times a day. It is claimed that certain muscles around the vermiform appendix are brought into play and strengthened by this quadrupedal cure which are unused when a biped walks erect. The same treatment is recommended for dyspepsia.

Women In Korea.

The women of the commonly in Korea are voluble and rixenish and ever ready to slap a handful of stars into the eyes of a husband—or into those of a timid and shrinking tourist—should the occasion arise, says the New York Journal. The women of the upper class are rigorously excluded from masculine eyes, and a hearty vote of thanks is due the committee which fathered this unwritten law. The dainty little Japanese musmee, teetering along in sandals or on wooden gets, is a genuine relief to the eye after a view of the uncomely Korean woman.

Shy Tibetan Ladies.

A correspondent with the English expedition to Tibet writes from Chumbi that a large number of women, who are employed in the construction of stone buildings for the accommodation of the troops have made their already by no means prepossessing faces still more hideous by blackening their noses in order to avoid exciting the admiration of the sepoys. The cold is so severe that the saddles have frozen on to the animals' backs.

The Money Microbe.

We know there's no money in microbes. But there's microbes in money, they say. And the doctors propose disinfection. The wicked intruders to slay.

We've cholera, consumption and typhoid. Go Saturday night with our pay. But now they'll use formic anhydrous to drive the destroyer away.

From dollar and dime the bacillus. In terror and anger will flee. And we need not refuse the good money. That's coming to you and to me.

—New York World.

JAPAN'S JACK, TABS.

THEY CHALLENGE THE WORLD FOR DARING AND SKILL.

Russians No Match For the Seamen of the Mikado—Two Famous Fighters Who Directed the Battle of Port Arthur—Japan's Naval Strength.

The brilliancy and dash with which the Japanese opened the war in the far east have won the admiration of the civilized world and have added greatly to their reputation, already established, as fighters of cool nerve and quick action.

Japan's naval armament consists of seven battleships, eight armored cruisers, which to all intents and purposes are battleships, and a large fleet of protected and unprotected cruisers, destroyers and torpedo boats, all splendidly officered and manned. The torpedo attack on the czar's fleet at Port Arthur is without parallel in naval warfare, and its dire results to the Russians speak well for the skill with which it was planned and carried into effect.

Vice Admiral Togo, who was in command of the Japanese in the opening engagement of the present war, is an officer of wide experience and possesses the confidence of his subordinates as well as that of his government. He has the reputation of being a man of great energy and decision and a determined fighter.

In the war with China, 1894-95, Admiral Togo also struck the first blow on the sea. He was then a captain, commanding the Naniwa, rated a second class cruiser, but in reality a converted vessel, with little armor and a battery that would now be counted too heavy for her. The Naniwa was attacked off the Korean coast in July, 1894, by the Chinese cruiser Tsi Yuan, but beat her off with great damage to the Chinese ship.

A few days later the Naniwa fell in with the British steamship Kowshing, chartered as a transport by the Chinese and carrying stores and troops to

REAR ADMIRAL KAMIMURA

Korea. Captain Togo fired blank shots as a signal for the Kowshing to stop. The captain of the Kowshing obeyed, but when he was ordered by Togo to follow the Naniwa the Chinese officers on board compelled him to disobey. Neither would they permit the British officers to leave the ship. To board her would have been a very dangerous undertaking for the Japanese crew. She was thereupon torpedoed and sunk.

Admiral Togo played a part in the battle of the Yalu river which brought him fame and glory. His ship fought in Admiral Tsuboi's light squadron and received a shell in one of her coal bunkers, suffering, however, but little loss or damage. The fire of this squadron was deadly to the weak Chinese ships and was responsible for the destruction of the Chih Yuen and King Yuen.

All through the battle the Japanese gunnery appears to have been very good, and Admiral Togo's ship was one of those that most distinguished themselves.

Admiral Togo was one of the popular heroes of Japan before the recent victory. "The fighting admiral" was Count Togo's nickname when he was called last October to succeed Vice Admiral Tsuboi as commander of the navy. He is a young man to hold such high rank and is one of many native Christians who have risen to high position.

Rear Admiral Kamimura, Togo's second in command at Port Arthur, commanded the Akitsushima at the battle of the Yalu and gave a fine account of himself in that fight. He is respected as a thoroughly practical officer and an able organizer. After the Chinese war he was sent as a captain to England to take command of the battleship Asahi upon her completion on the Clyde, but his orders were changed, and he was detailed, with the rank of rear admiral, to remain and supervise the construction of other vessels of war. He was recalled to Japan three years ago.

Rear Admiral S. Uru, whose squadron sunk the Russian ships Variaz and Korietz off Chemulpo harbor recently, learned the rudiments of naval warfare in America and was graduated from Annapolis in 1882. He stood fourteenth in his class. His wife graduated at Vassar, and both have many American friends. He commanded the Naniwakan during the war with China and behaved with great gallantry at the battle of the Yalu river.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls, Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,--often it is never recovered. Miss Pratt says,--

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:--I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months."

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."--Miss ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich. --$6000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

NEW POWER PLANT

To Operate Newark and Zanesville, Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark, the Newark and Granville and City Electric Lines Will be Completed at Hebron by June First.

"When will the new power house in Hebron be finished gentlemen?" queried an Advocate man as he boarded a West Church street car, on which were General Manager J. R. Harrigan and A. M. Frazer, superintendent of Motive Power of the Buckeye Lake Interurban.

"Well, that question is rather difficult to answer with any degree of certainty at this time, but by June 1 at the farthest," replied the interurban officials, "and it will be worth any one's time to go through the new plant when it is finished, as it will be as adequate as any power house in the United States when completed."

"Tell me something about the plant," requested the news man, and both Mr. Harrigan and Mr. Frazer entered into a detailed description of the new power house with its many details.

"In the first place, all the power for the C. B. L. & N. the Columbus, Newark and Zanesville, the Newark and Granville roads and the Newark city lines will be generated at this central power house at Hebron, and although it was a large and well equipped power house, it was imperative, in view of the increased draught upon the facilities, to increase the capacity of the power house. To do this the first thing was to put an addition to the building, and a 32 foot addition was built to the 60 foot power house. In this addition is now being built the new 2300 horse power Allis-Chalmers engine, manufactured in Milwaukee, which has a capacity of 1500 kilowatts, 3 phase.

"The cylinder measurements of this monster engine are 34x68x48, and being a latest improved upright it takes less room than one of the horizontal type. Two new Sterling boilers of 310 horse power each are also to be installed, so that the mechanical capacity will be sufficient for any extraordinary drain upon the power for a long time to come.

"A new substation will be operated at Pleasant Valley, and the new power house at Hebron will take care of the entire line from Zanesville to Columbus, including the Newark and Granville and the Newark city lines.

"A decided novelty in this country will be the foundation upon which rests the new engine. This is of concrete and when completed will be, to all intents and purposes, a single, solid stone.

"There will be other features in the new plant which will be in accordance with the most approved style of mechanical and architectural science.

"The new addition is being built by Contractor P. S. Phillips of Newark."

BILL INTRODUCED IN SENATE TO ABOLISH SPRING ELECTIONS

Measure is to Be Pushed to Early Passage if Possible--One Ballot for all Names--Cox Wins Over Clevelanders--Other Legislative Measures.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23--The long expected bill to abolish spring elections was introduced by Senator Chapman, of Montgomery, and will be pushed to early passage, if it is found that no serious objection arises.

For obvious reasons the Cleveland delegation is especially anxious to have the bill passed although it extends the terms of Mayor Johnson and other city officers and boards eight months. Nearly all of the other officials of the state favor the measure. Cox will support it.

It is the intention to rush the bill through the Senate with as little delay as possible in order to secure early consideration in the house. The spring election is close at hand, and if it is to be abolished it is so desired before preparations for the primaries begin.

The bill provides for the election of all municipal officers and township officers on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in 1904, and the terms of all officers, expiring on the first Monday in May, are extended until the first Monday in January after election.

Officers elected in November, 1904, shall begin their term on the first Monday in January after the election, and all successors to judges and clerks of police court shall be elected on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

One ballot shall suffice for all names of candidates to be elected in November, and in this Cox won out in his contention. Clevelanders at the outset demanded separate tickets. Members of city boards shall be appointed not earlier than the second Monday in January.

FREE LECTURE

By Prof. Williams at First Presbyterian Church Thursday Night--The Object of Lecture.

The second lecture in the course now being given by Prof. C. L. Williams of Denison university in the First Presbyterian church, under the auspices of Pan-Racial Institute, Chapter No. 1, will be delivered Thursday evening, February 25, the subject being "Shakespeare as an Exponent of Human Nature."

The Pan-Racial Institute aims among other things, to cultivate cosmopolitan sympathies and to create as it may a more intelligent appreciation of the deeper meaning of the commonplace realities and expressions of life. To this end Shakespeare may be studied with great profit, for he saw and heard and deigned much in what to others seemed meaningless and trivial, and in proportion to the breadth of his sympathies and the depth of his insight was his life enriched.

The lecture will be free and open to the public, but to defray actual expenses a selection will be taken.

Preceding the lecture will be a short musical program beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

"BABY AND I WERE SAVED BY PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND"

Story of This Burdened Mother's Bravery Throbs With Human Interest.

HEROINE OF LISBON EPIDEMIC.

Mrs. Horn, as Sick-Nurse, Saved Sheriff's Daughter and All Typhoid Patients -- She Relied on Paine's Celery Compound

By Mrs. F. M. Horn.

As my parents died when I was very small, I had to commence working hard when I was a mere child.

I WOULD SET ALL RUN DOWN AND WOULD HAVE HAD TO GIVE UP COMPLETELY WERE IT NOT FOR PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND. BUT THAT HAS ALWAYS BEEN MY STAPLE.

I always rely upon it to strengthen and build me up again and keep me well. About my experience in the Lisbon typhoid epidemic: Before my marriage I was a sick nurse. There is no hospital in this country, and the poor and homeless have to be taken in and cared for by any one who can do it at county expense.

It was after my marriage that the epidemic of typhoid fever broke out in its worst form. I took in patients, cared for them, and meanwhile did all my own housework except washing.

I NEVER LOST A PATIENT, AND I HAD SOME OF THE WORST CASES IN TOWN.

OUR SHERIFF GIVES ME THE CREDIT OF SAVING HIS DAUGHTER, THE LADY OF THE HOUSE, FROM THE TYPHOID FEVER. AFTER DOCTOR HAD GIVEN UP HOPE, BUT I RELIED ON PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

When my last patient was well I was almost a skeleton, but I took several bottles of Paine's Celery Compound, and it kept me up until I had a nice, plump baby with not more than three hours' severe suffering. My neighbors and I believe that Paine's Celery Compound saved my baby and me.

When nine months old baby weighed 24 pounds, and at one year 25 pounds. Then the place where we were living was sold and we had to move. It meant leaving our garden, which was all planted--and we been secured to play the Newark High school team Saturday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The game will be called at 8:30 and the admission will be at the same popular price, 15 cents.

A Mother's Recommendation.
I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy. Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich. For sale by all druggists.

THE STORY OF FATHER JOHN'S

An interesting History Supported by Endorsements from Many Institutions Throughout the Country.

In 1848, Rev. Father John O'Brien, a noble man, came to Lowell, Mass., to do the Master's work, in St. Patrick's parish.

In 1854, Father John, as he was fondly known to his people, was attacked by a serious cold, which developed into a stubborn cough and affliction of the lungs, caused the greatest alarm for the health of the beloved clergyman.

Medical skill seemed unable to stay the progress of the disease. Finally, an eminent specialist was consulted who gave Father John a prescription to cure the cold and remove the lung trouble, as well as to build up and strengthen the body. The clergyman took the prescription to the old drug store of Carlton & Hovey, Lowell, Mass., the firm by whom Father John's Medicine is prepared. The cough soon disappeared and his people rejoiced when he declared that he had been made as well and strong as ever.

Father John recommended the medi-icine to his parishioners and friends, and thousands were made well and strong by taking it. In getting this prescription they always called for "Father John's Medicine," and so it was named by the people, and advertised--all with the approval and sanction of Reverend Father O'Brien, because he knew of its merit and desired that all who were ailing might benefit by its power to cure.

This old-fashioned wholesome remedy is unequalled as a body builder and tonic. It restores health and strength to all run down systems. Its gentle laxative effect strengthens the stomach and corrects the digestion. It drives out all impurities. It is a food medicine and contains only pure nourishment. It is not a patent medicine, and it is free from opium, morphine or poisonous drugs in any form, which are found in the majority of patent preparations and which are dangerous--you are warned against them.

While it is not a "cough syrup" or "balm," nothing equals this prescription for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and all throat and lung troubles. It has a most soothing and healing effect and at the same time builds up the body and makes strength.

CASHIER SHORT

MCCRAID USED MONEY FOR HIS PERSONAL BENEFIT.

Property Turned Over to Institution to Square Accounts—Ousted from Place of Trust.

Seymour, Ind., Feb. 23.—This community was greatly shocked when it became known that Cyrus E. McCrady, cashier of the First National Bank and treasurer of the Co-operative Building and Loan Association, was short in his accounts with both these institutions. The amount is fixed at $12,000.

This was covered on the bank books by padding the accounts with the correspondents in New York and Cincinnati. These accounts were kept by the cashier only, and he now admits that for the past year or two he has been hurrying down in the mornings so as to get the bank's mail before any of the other officers should open it, and thus prevent discovery.

With the building and loan association the discovery came when the bank asked for additional collateral on a note of $10,000 which it held against the building association. This money had been borrowed about two years ago by the association to pay off the stock in a series which had matured. About six months later the directors ordered the note paid off, and McCrady, who was their treasurer, reported it paid. Instead, however, he had not taken it up, but had paid the interest on it and allowed the bank to hold it. When confronted with the fact a few days ago he acknowledged the shortage and assisted the officers in locating other amounts.

The building association at once cancelled $1,500 paid up stock which McCrady held and took also $1,500 which he had to his credit as treasurer so that their shortage is reduced $3,000 leaving it $11,500 net.

McCrady at once turned over all his property, both real estate and personal assets, amounting as variously estimated from $22,000 to $28,000 so that he will probably pay off all obligations in full and neither institution will lose anything nor will his bondsmen lose much, if anything, by the defalcation.

McCrady was interested in several other business institutions here, but their funds are supposed to be intact, and he says that their accounts will be found in good shape. He was also treasurer of the Masonic Lodge building committee and of the Methodist church, but neither had any amount of funds on hand. The Masons recently erected a handsome temple.

No man in the community had its confidence more fully than that Mr. McCrady. His life has not been extravagant and the money taken from the institutions was used in business investments.

JOHN MITCHELL

John Mitchell, who was recently re-elected President of the United Mine Workers of America, is probably the best known labor leader in the United States. He will shortly leave on his maiden trip to Europe where he goes to act as one of the two American delegates to the great International Mining Congress.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is as modest in fixing the value of his own services as he is insistent that his fellow laborers shall get the highest reward their toil deserves.

During the recent annual convention of the United Mine Workers, which for the sixth successive time elected Mr. Mitchell president, a motion was made to increase his salary from $5,000 to $10,000. Mr. Mitchell, who presided, refused to entertain the motion. It was then amended to read $5,000, and, although carried by the convention, Mr. Mitchell declared the motion lost.

John Mitchell is a native of Brimwood, Ill., is of Irish parentage and is thirty-five years old. Left an orphan at a tender age, he entered the mines as a door boy at the age of thirteen, and as soon as he was old enough he joined the Knights of Labor. His education, he gained by reading and study.

John Mitchell's home is at Spring Valley, Ill., where he has a wife and four children. His wife was Miss Katharine O'Rourke, the daughter of a prosperous farmer of Spring Valley.

EXPLOSION

Of Gas at Home of Rev. L. C. Sparks Results in the Injury of Mrs. Sparks

Mrs. Sparks, wife of Rev. L. C. Sparks, had the misfortune to meet with an accident at her home 59 North Fifth street, on Monday evening that resulted in her receiving injuries of a very painful, though not serious nature. She was in the act of applying a lighted match to the range, when a considerable quantity of gas that had accumulated in the oven exploded. Her hands and hair were burned, but fortunately her face was not touched by the flames. Dr. Foster attended her injuries.

BANQUET

Held by Citizens Legion at Kusters on Monday Night—Plans for Coming Year Discussed.

The annual banquet of the Citizens' Legion Rifle Corps was held at Kuster's on Monday night. There was a good attendance of the members, and the occasion was a most enjoyable one. An elegant turkey supper was served.

At each plate was placed an excellent picture of Washington and the "Minute Men" at Concord bridge. Short speeches were made by Attorney G. C. Daugherty, Rev. L. S. Boyce, Major F. G. Steele, W. E. Painter and others. Plans for the coming year's work were discussed.

HANNA WILL

ESTATE OF THREE MILLION GOES TO THE FAMILY.

Widow Gets One Third, Children the Rest—Nothing Has Been Left to Charity.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 23.—The late Senator Hanna's will was filed for probate today. One-third of the estate is bequeathed to Mrs. Hanna, the remaining two-thirds going to the three children, Dan R. Hanna, Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. McCormick. Nothing is left to charity. Mrs. Hanna, Dan R. and C. Hanna are named as trustees. The estate is valued at $3,000,000.

DOVER MAY NOT ACT.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 13.—Elmer Dover who has been named temporary secretary of the National Republican committee left for Washington yesterday to hold a conference with Pastmaster General Payne. Mr. Dover practically has been filling the duties of secretary for a number of years. Mr. Dover said that the arrangement of the late Senator Hanna's affairs will take about three months of his time. He said he fore leaving that he might not be able to act as secretary of the National committee on account of the press of these matters.

NOT PLACED IN VAULT.

Cleveland, Feb. 23.—The body of Senator Hanna was not placed in the vault Monday as had been expected. Mrs. Hanna is still too ill to go from her son's home and further burial arrangements have not been made.

POLICE

Puzzled by Three Mysterious Deaths in New York City—The Victims Were All Women

New York, Feb. 23.—Three mysterious death cases, in each of which a woman was the victim, confronted the police. Found robbed and slain in her apartments at 215 East One Hundred and Third street, by the "Cervello" blow, famous among Sicilians, Mrs. Wilhelmina Hickson, an aged widow, is believed by the police to have been killed for revenge.

She is said to have stopped young Giovanni di Gregorio in his courtship of pretty Daisy Hoffman, a vaudeville actress.

Poisoned by an overdose of morphine tablets the sixth wife of Colonel Myers, the veteran consulting engineer, died at her home, 199 West Forty-sixth street. The husband and a nurse were arrested but were practically exonerated in court.

Mrs. Joseph Kratsky was found in her apartments at 259 West Thirty-eighth street, strangled to death, and her husband was taken into custody. He protested his innocence, saying that he had found her with a handkerchief knotted around her neck.

There are nearly twenty thousand known medicinal remedies.

RODE WITH CREW OF A FAST FREIGHT TRAIN.

Of All the Crew Only the Fireman of the Lackawanna Train Escaped Loss.

New York, Feb. 23.—The angel of death rode with the crew of the Scranton fast freight on the Lackawanna railroad which rolled into the yard at Washington, N. J., last night.

While "cutting out" a car near Washington, Frank Loughran, of Scranton, making his first trip, was caught between the cars and crushed to death. As the crew was sadly departing for home Conductor Masters received word that his son had been killed in a wreck near Buffalo in the afternoon.

Engineer McLaughlin went to the round house. A relative was there waiting to tell him that his boy had died but a few hours before. Brake-man Reasers, hurrying home and ignorant of the third calamity that had visited the ill-fated crew, was met with the news at his door that his mother had died during the afternoon. Of all the crew, only the fireman of the train escaped a personal loss.

"The bad news is longer coming to me; that's all," he said, when he heard of the others' misfortune.

KOREA'S SEVEN WONDERS.

The Most Remarkable Is a Hovering Stone, Says Sir Charles Ross.

Colonel Sir Charles Ross, an old warrior, who served throughout the Indian mutiny and other campaigns and has held various offices under the British government, stopped over at the Albermarle hotel the other day on his return to Montreal, where he resides for the greater part of his time when not traveling, says the New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser. Sir Charles has traveled four times round the world. About a year ago he visited Korea, and of that country he speaks interestingly.

"Perhaps the most entertaining of the many things to be seen in Korea," Sir Charles said, "are the 'seven wonders.' The first of the wonders consists of a hot mineral spring near a place called Kin Shantao. The spring is credited with the power among the natives of curing sickness and disease of all sorts. Your Saratoga springs are not a comparison. The second wonder is two wells, one at each end of the peninsula. When one is full the other is empty. The water of the one is intensely bitter; the other has a sweet and pleasant taste. The third wonder is a cold cave, from which there issues constantly an icy wind, with such force that a strong man is unable to stand up against it. A pine forest which cannot be eradicated constitutes the fourth wonder. No matter what injury may be done to the roots, the young trees spring up again. They simply won't be killed.

"The most remarkable, however, is the fifth wonder—a hovering stone, which stands, or, rather, appears to stand, in front of a palace erected to its honor. The palace is a massive rectangular block, free on all sides. Two men standing, one at each end, can draw a cord underneath the stone from side to side without encountering any obstacle. The sixth wonder is a hot stone, which has been lying from time immemorial on the summit of a hill, and giving out a glowing heat. The seventh Korean wonder is a sweat-bath. It is guarded in a great temple in whose court for thirty yards on all sides has not a single blade of grass grown. Not a tree nor a flower will flourish on the spot, and even wild beasts, I was told, are careful not to profane it."

DETAILS OF NOVEL DUEL.

Illinois Editor and Military Man in Farming Contest.

An agricultural duel is to be fought out to the death or till honor is satisfied between Colonel Frank O. Lowden of Chicago and Editor Carl Feiser of Mount Carmel, Ill., says a Chicago dispatch.

The challenge was issued while Mr. Lowden was stumping Ogle county. Feiser stated in his paper that Mr. Lowden was only a Chicago agriculturist and knew nothing about farming. Mr. Lowden responded in about the same kind of language and stated that he desired to meet the editor with cows, turkeys or plows in honorable combat. The newspaper man accepted. The conditions of the challenge are that the men are to go next July to the Lowden farm in Ogle county, where they are to compete in milking Mrs. Lowden's thoroughbred Jersey cows, feeding the Poland-China hogs, tending the chickens and, last but not least, in pitching hay.

Feeling between the men is running higher since the challenge, for the colonel has been saying that the editor is fortitively studying old files of Mark Twain's agricultural paper, and the editor has printed that this may be only a scheme to get an expert farm hand without paying wages.

The Pluck of the Jap.

"Curious, isn't it," remarked one man to another in the smoking compartment of a Pullman, when the Russo-Japanese war was being discussed, says the Philadelphia Press, "how the average man sides with Japan? How much of this is due to advertising—for Japan has been persistently in print during the past twenty years—and how much is due to admiration for a little fellow with big pluck I cannot say."

"You've hit it in the latter," responded his companion. "The average American likes pluck, and the Japanese have it and to spare. Their courage in calling out huge, overwhelming Russia is real grit. That's why my sympathies are with the little yellow men."

Winter in Korea.

The winter in Korea reaches its extreme cold in January. In February there is an interval before the early rains of March, says the Hartford (Conn.) Times. Snow usually melts in March and April, when the sky is often cloudless and the sun shines hot and clear.

CUPID AND THE COMET

By ANNA S. RICHARDSON

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

It had been bad enough, said the cowboys, to have Buena Vista county turned into a rendezvous for invalids in various stages of hay fever, bronchitis and consumption. It was an outrage to have one's favorite barroom remodeled into a sanitarium, but it was heaping insult upon injury to have a twenty-five horsepower French racer dashing over roads—and good roads, too—long sacred to the festive cow pony.

With Harvey Thatcher, owner of said racer, the good roads surrounding Fort Norton, the county seat of Buena Vista county, had been the main attraction. When his physicians had ordered Colorado air, Thatcher had stipulated that section of eastern Colorado where the roads would permit him to break the already brilliant record of the Comet. And so it happened that he and his machine, his valet and his chauffeur, were thorns in the flesh of the cowboy element, even as the latter had worried the respectable faction among the early citizens of Fort Norton.

The cowboys had barely become accustomed to the presence of the Comet in their midst and had decided that it might prove dangerous to shoot up a gasoline engine when there arose fresh cause for dissatisfaction. Nan Bearce took to riding in the Comet. And Nan was the prettiest girl in Buena Vista county, or all the adjoining counties, for that matter. She had been the toast of every camp on the range, the belle at every ball, the queen of every county fair tournament in which the cowboys had fought for honors after their own peculiar fashion. Her favors had been evenly distributed, and her devotion had gone to her worthless father, who ran the one shoe shop of which Fort Norton could boast. A dilapidated, evil smelling den he kept at the end of the street leading north from the postoffice, but the three rooms behind the shop were as fresh and sweet as Nan's stout arms and sunny nature could keep them.

There were men, dozens of them, in Buena Vista county who would have been willing to overlook the father, miserable, drunken wretch that he was, for love of the girl, but she seemed too proud to foist the old man on any of her anxious suitors. The only favor she had ever been known to accept was at the hands of Ben Heth, a stolid, almost morose young ranchman, who had started into the stock raising business in a small way and who held himself aloof from the rollicking, roistering element which had terrorized Fort Norton at regular intervals. When old Bearce had been smitten with smallpox Heth, under cover of darkness, had removed him to his own ranch because of Nan's horror of the pesthouse, and the three had endured the relentless quarantine together. Then the intimacy had apparently been broken off, old Bearce going back to his bench. Nan to her poverty stricken life and Heth to his lonely existence on the cattle range.

All this was before Thatcher and the Comet came to Fort Norton. After old Bearce had skillfully mended some rents in Thatcher's leather robes the friendship between the dashing young automobilist from New York and the humble and beautiful daughter of the village shoemaker became town gossip. Women discussed it over their back fences and at the sewing circle of the Union church. Men shook their heads around the store at Gilbert's general store, and the news spread out on the range. Thatcher was making a fool of Nan Bearce, and there were mutterings that boded ill for the owner of the Comet. The only man who declined to discuss the situation was Ben Heth and that even after Nan and young Thatcher had ridden out to his ranch twice in the devil's wagon, as one old woman called it. To be sure, the chauffeur was in attendance, but what was a chauffeur perched up in the back seat with Nan—indeed, alluring Nan—her soft, brown hair tossed by the wind, her eyes alight with the excitement of the racing young New Yorker on the other speed?

Once they had been seen coming back to town at a slow pace, with Ben trying to keep his astonished pony within talking distance of the machine. Parties who had witnessed the scene reported it variously. Some said that Ben appeared to enjoy the proceeding, more fool he, while others maintained that he was berating Nan for unfaithfulness, even in the presence of his rival.

But Ben's love affair was utterly forgotten in the face of more momentous events which came with the roundup. The H. O. Cattle company, with which Ben had worked before branching out for himself, discovered what it chose to designate as a shortage in H. O. calves and a corresponding and suspicious increase in calves with the Heth brand. The H. O. brand was a bar with an O on the end. The Heth brand was a dumbbell. Rumor—and rumor in Buena Vista county is an ugly customer—declared that it was easy to change the bar-O to the dumbbell. The air around Fort Norton became rife with things other than mere rumors, including some very bad whiskey. And justice, as drink crazed cow punchers sometimes see it, works with appalling suddenness.

Rumors travel faster than half drunk cow punchers who stop at each saloon to drown their threats in bad whiskey, and a twenty-five horsepower machine will travel faster than either. That was why the mob that had started out to hang Ben Heth as a sort of climax for the annual roundup came upon the Comet, its owner, his valet and his chauffeur two miles beyond Heth's ranch. They were still hunting for Heth, after having razed his ranch cabin. The Comet was piled high with luggage, a couple of dress suit cases showing above the boxes, and rubber blankets, which filled in the body of the machine. Thatcher explained in a casual way that he was trying some new roads and might be gone a week or more. The cowboys sent him on his way with a volley of shots. They were bent on more serious work.

The Comet shot along the country road, through the soft twilight and the dim moonlight, straight across the state line into Nebraska. At precisely the same time the Overland limited was carrying a white faced but determined girl over the same state line.

Thatcher insisted upon giving away the bride and receiving the first kiss after the ceremony. He said it was due for excess baggage on the best run Comet had ever made. Then the great red machine, its owner, his chauffeur and his valet rolled back to Fort Norton without the impressive array of luggage, and Harvey Thatcher, tenderfoot from New York, announced that when a certain bunch of uninitiated fools had finished their annual spree and had recounted their blankety blank calves the bride and groom would come back to Fort Norton, at which time the damages claimed by said groom for injury done his property and his reputation would be paid or the sheriff of Buena Vista county and one Harvey Thatcher, Esq., would know the reason why, whereupon said Harvey Thatcher promptly rose in the estimation of the cowboy element, and his horseless vehicle was forgiven him.

THE OTHER MAN

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

One dark night, while Grant's lines were investing Petersburg, a Federal force captured a Confederate outpost, and no sooner were the prisoners brought in than one of them proved to be the double of a private in a New York regiment.

The name of the Confederate was Wakefield, while that of the Federal was Thomas. The former belonged to a Louisiana regiment. When placed side by side they seemed to be twin brothers. Each was about twenty-two years old; each was about five feet five inches high; each weighed 140 pounds. Their eyes and hair were of the same color, and even their voices were the same except that the southerner had a little more drawl. The pair were as much astonished as the officers and surgeons who were called to look them over.

You will not be surprised that advantage was taken of this curious coincidence to send Thomas into the Confederate lines. As a preparatory step he was given a week in which to pump Wakefield. The prisoner did not know the object and, being of a garrulous disposition, he was ready to talk on any subject. Thomas got from him his family history complete, then the name of the town from which the man hailed, with incidents of people and streets; then the names of his officers and comrades, with incidents of campaigning. The Federal had been an actor before enlisting and had cultivated a wonderful memory. When he had stored up a thousand different things in his mind he bought the uniform worn by the Confederate and was ready to set out on his mission.

One night Thomas was taken down to the front and made a bolt for it. In other words, it was made to appear that one of the Confederate prisoners was making a dash for liberty, and the picket opened a sharp fire, but took care not to aim at the running man. On reaching the Confederate lines Thomas was sent to the headquarters of General Mahone. The general seemed a bit suspicious, and Thomas, playing the part of Wakefield, asked that his captain be sent for. It was a couple of hours before the officer arrived, and the general at once said to him: "Captain, this man who has come into our lines tonight claims to be a member of your company. Is he or is he not?"

"He certainly is, sir," was the prompt reply.

"What's his name?"

"John Wakefield, sir."

That settled it.

After three or four days and under pretense of visiting a cousin in a Virginia regiment Thomas covered the front and had a look at guns and fortifications. When he returned to camp, calculating to take the first opportunity to escape, he was at once put under arrest. It appeared that Wakefield and some of his comrades had raided a store of a lot of eatables, and the proprietor had ascertained their names and now demanded their punishment.

When the merchant and Thomas were brought face to face the latter declared that Thomas was not the man he represented himself to be. Why he should have made such a declaration is a puzzle, but he seemed to be guided by intuition. He was ridiculed and laughed at, but he stuck to his assertion and even denounced Thomas to General Mahone. As stated after the war, the general had felt doubts of Thomas from the first, which may again be set down to the sense of intuition.

The name of the merchant who had been despoiled was Saunders, and he was of an implacable nature. Being put on his mettle by the sneers and ridicule, he determined to prove his case at all costs. As the accuser he had the general ask hundreds of questions. He knew the town and the people from which Thomas as Wakefield claimed to hail and in the course of the day had trapped him a dozen times over. As an offset all the officers and privates of the company asserted that Thomas was Wakefield and that there was no room to doubt. He went at it and related every incident of camp life for a year past and told of things which it seemed impossible for a stranger to know.

General Mahone was clearly puzzled over the case and took two days to think it over. At the end of that time Thomas was escorted back to find a soldier in Federal uniform in the general's tent, and there were also two civilians in waiting. It was a little surprise for the spy. The man in Federal uniform claimed to have known Thomas as a Federal soldier under the name of Brown, and the two civilians claimed that he had never been a resident of their town.

Thomas realized that the pinch had come, and he braced himself to make a fight for his life. General Mahone treated him in the fairest manner, and, acting as his own counsel, he went at it and soon had the supposed Federal soldier all twisted up and out of the running. Then he tackled the civilians, and they proved to be as easy game. Instead of being cornered up he cornered his accusers, and it was so well done that he was complimented by the general. When the case had been concluded, Mahone leaned back and looked at the prisoner for a long minute and then said:

"Wakefield, everything is in your favor, and I am going to dismiss the charges."

There is no doubt that in time the imposture would have been exposed and that he would have ended his life on the gallows, but one night during a terrible thunderstorm, with a row going on between the pickets at the same time, he made a bolt and fortunately reached the Federal lines in safety.

M. QUAD.

What We Find in Old Schoolbooks.

Along with the writing in old schoolbooks there is more or less drawing. The very early books sometimes have fly leaf sketches of Indians and log houses. The later books, says Leslie's Monthly, have houses of more modern sort, and you find rude drawings of steamboats, horses, birds, flowers, faces and the like. Often a penny or other coin was slipped under the fly leaf and the surface of the paper covering the coin was rubbed with a piece of lead from the schoolboy's pocket or the blunt end of a pencil.

The children had numerous methods for defacing their schoolbooks, and they also had certain devices for keeping them in good order. Many of the older books are protected by an outer cover of sheepskin neatly folded in at the edges and sewed in place with homespun tow. After 1825 this outer covering was apt to be calico, and sometimes there were tie strings attached to the sides. The girls were addicted to the use of a "thumb paper" folded and slipped in where the thumb rested when the book was in use.

Her Opinion.

He was very badly gone in love indeed, as may be judged by the fact that he sat up till the wee sma' hours and nibbled two inches off a pen in composing the following epic:

Beautiful one with eyes so blue,
Oh, how my fond heart sighs for you!
Sweet spirit, listen to me now,
Hear once again my ardent vow!

There was about two feet six inches of this soul inspiring verse, and he sent it to the object of his adoration, with a request that she would express an opinion on its merits. He got it.

Dear Mr. Theodore Hopkins—You ask me for my opinion of your verses. I do not like to hurt your feelings, but if you will read the initial letters of the first four lines downward I may say that your expressions are excellent, exactly as you very truly.

MABEL BROWNE.

And when Theodore strung the first four letters together he pondered bitterly.—London Telegraph.

The Harm Noise Does.

Noise is an undoubted factor in impairing the tone of the nerve centers. Whether we are conscious of it or not, it lures the brain and has a deafening, bewildering effect on the mental processes. It tires the brain and tends to produce cerebral hyperemia. To live in a noisy atmosphere is to shorten one's day. Irritability, neurasthenia, insomnia, are common effects. The tympanum, or drum membrane of the ear is injured, the circulation of the cerebral spinal fluid is disturbed and the nerve cells themselves suffer as though subjected to mechanical violence.—Family Doctor.

Woman's Ills

How rare a thing to find a woman who is perfectly healthy. Fully seventy per cent. of the sex suffers from ailments which often render life a burden. These ailments cause nervousness, irritability, melancholy, hysteria, etc. They entirely unfit a woman for life's work and deprive her of most of its joys.

AUNT DINAH'S OLD VIRGINIA Herb Tea

WOMAN'S SAFE GUARD.

Those suffering with disordered menstruation, female weakness, prostrations, etc., will find immediate relief from the use of Aunt Dinah's Old Virginia Herb Tea. In case of nervousness and sleeplessness this tea will be found indeed a boon. It has a soothing and quieting effect on the nerves and invariably induces sound, refreshing sleep. A cupful at bedtime is all that is necessary to make a woman well and keep her well.

Marysville, O., Dec. 5, 1902.
Hamlins Wizard Oil Co., Chicago, Ill.
Two years ago I suffered from a complaint and used your Aunt Dinah's Old Virginia Herb Tea with great success. I have been taking it since and I feel much younger and stronger. I every woman sufferer could know the relief she would experience by using your Herb Tea and I can never be without it. It is a most wonderful remedy and I take pleasure in recommending it to any lady who is suffering with female troubles.
Miss C. C. LESTER.

NEWS OF THE STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD

FOUL PLAY

Strongly Suspected in Case of a Sudden Death at Bysessville Sunday Morning.

Cambridge, O., Feb. 23—Rumors of foul play are rife concerning the death of James Hardy, a miner, 27 years old, and married, who died very suddenly at his home in Bysessville Sunday morning. When Dr. Fletcher called at his home he found him in convulsions, and was unable to relieve him. There is said to be some mystery surrounding his death and Coroner Yeo was notified.

Constable Gallup came from Bysessville and reports that Coroner Yeo is holding an inquest. Fourteen witnesses have been subpoenaed, but up to the noon hour only one had been examined. A post mortem examination may be held.

It is said there is much talk at Bysessville about the case and there are rumors of foul play. Developments in the case are awaited with interest.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING.

Cambridge, Feb. 23—Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston, of Dewey avenue, West Cambridge, celebrated their 50th or golden wedding anniversary, with a grand reception for their relatives and many friends at their home Monday.

GRANVILLE

Frank Rees' Horse Ran Away—John Swartz Entertained a Few College Friends—Notes.

Granville, O., Feb. 23—Mr. Frank Rees, who resides in the Welsh Hills, a short distance from this place, met with an unfortunate accident on Monday night. He was on his way to the village and was driving a spirited horse, and when near the residence of Henry Hill, the front axle of his buggy fell, causing the bed of the vehicle to drop to the ground and frighten the horse. Mr. Rees, in attempting to jump from the buggy fell on his knees, but managed to hold to the horse and finally succeeded in controlling him.

The Franklin Literary Society is already beginning its preparations for the Lewis contest in the spring. A preliminary debate will be held March 16. Speakers may choose either side of the question, Resolved, "That the Economic Advantages of Trusts are Sufficient to Justify Their Existence Under the Law."

Miss Ransom, assisted by Mr. Judson, will give a piano recital at the recital hall on Wednesday evening, February 24. This will be one of the finest musical entertainments of the season.

Mr. John Swartz very delightfully entertained a few friends among the young men and women of the village and college on Monday evening. The young women were gowned in old fashioned costumes, according to those worn in the time of George Washington. A dainty luncheon was served and a most enjoyable evening was had by those who were present.

THREATEN DIVINE HEALER.

Shelby, O., Feb. 23—This city is worked up to a fever heat by the performances of a troupe of "divine healers," which claims to hail from Los Angeles, California.

The healers are led by "Dr." F. E. Yoakum. Cripples, bed ridden, and consumptives claim to have been cured by anointment of oil and prayer.

The citizens are objecting to the healers' presence in the city, and have threatened them with personal violence if they do not move on their own volition.

PISTOL ACCIDENT.

Lancaster, Feb. 23—County Commissioner Nick Stuckley of Lancaster, while examining the mechanism of a loaded revolver, accidentally pulled the trigger, the ball passing through the right hand between the first and second fingers and grazing the breast of Phil Fitters, janitor of the court house where the accident occurred.

TEACHERS

OF OHIO MET IN COLUMBUS ON MONDAY

To Consider Means of Remedying Defects in School Courses—Legislation Was Not Considered.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23—Prominent teachers in high schools and colleges of the state met Monday, at the Chittenden, and formed a temporary organization. The chief purpose of the association, according to one of the promoters, is to better acquaint the members with one another's work, and strive for the advancement of things of interest to the professors in Ohio's advanced schools.

Another principal reason for the association meeting is to remedy defects in the school courses. It was argued at the meeting that in some districts of the state the courses of the high schools overlap those of the colleges and cause much unnecessary confusion.

The question of legislation was not seriously considered at the meeting, it being thought best to have a larger representation present when the subject is discussed.

The call for the meeting was signed by T. E. McKinnon, Marietta; G. B. Halstead, Kenyon; C. E. Corwin, Zanesville; C. S. Howe, Cleveland; Professor William Hoover, Athens, and Professor Thompson, Oxford.

INJUNCTION

GRANTED THAT WILL COMPEL WIFE TO WORK.

She Must Attend to Household Duties During Pendency of Her Suit for Divorce.

Coshooton, O., Feb. 23—Government by injunction prevails in the household of Lawrence Holsky, of this place. If Mrs. Holsky doesn't comply with the terms of her marriage contract, as the court construes them, she is liable to be imprisoned for contempt. Mrs. Holsky recently began suit for divorce against her husband. With the filing of the papers she left Holsky to shift for himself.

Washing dishes and acting as cook and chambermaid did not appeal to Holsky.

"She's still my wife; can't I make her for me?" he asked his lawyer.

"You can if the court will order her to," was the attorney's advice.

Holsky applied for a temporary injunction to restrain his wife from refusing to do the work.

The injunction was promptly granted. Pending the decision in the divorce suit, Mrs. Holsky is required to attend to her housewifery duties.

It is expressly stipulated in the injunction that she must cook her husband's meals and make his bed. The court held that in refusing to do these things Mrs. Holsky was violating her marriage contract, under which she tacitly agreed, the Judge decided to do the things that Holsky now insists upon her doing.

DEATH RATE

From the Columbus Typhoid Epidemic is More Than Eight Per Cent—Six Cleveland Deaths.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23—The typhoid fever death rate climbed up to something more than 8 per cent Monday, which is in excess of the mortality rate at Baltimore. Out of a total of 1,146 cases since the epidemic began there have been 116 deaths.

Cleveland, O. Feb. 23—Six deaths from typhoid fever were reported to the health office Monday—an unusually high death rate. The number of new cases reported was 18. Health Officer Friedrich began an active campaign against further spread of the disease. He started with milk dealers.

WOMAN'S BODY IDENTIFIED.

Springfield, O., Feb. 23—The woman killed by a C. L. & S. traction car Sunday night, east of here, has been identified as Wilhelmina Yenke. She was going to the home of her son on Portmont avenue.

RURAL CARRIERS

Perry County Held Quarterly Meeting at Somerset Monday, But Do Little Business.

Somerset, O., Feb. 23—The regular quarterly meeting of the Rural Mail Carriers' Association of Perry county was held here Monday. Eleven members were present. There are 25 rural routes in the county, but only fifteen carriers belong to the association, which was organized at Junction City Thanksgiving day, 1903. The officers are, president, John McAllister, Thornville; vice president, Edward Wyrick, Somerset; secretary, John W. Wilson, New Straitsville, and treasurer, Frank Ridenour, Glenford. No business of importance was transacted. The next meeting will be at New Lexington, Saturday, May 28, 1904.

CREDITOR FILES EXCEPTIONS.

Marysville, O., Feb. 23—The creditors of Isaac Miller, of Richwood, who recently went into bankruptcy, have filed exceptions to the bill of his clerk Amien Gross, for $300. Miller claims that three months prior to his going into bankruptcy he hired Gross at a salary of $160 a month. The creditors, about 106, claim that this is an enormous sum paid for a clerk in a village like Richwood.

NATURAL GAS

Newark Isn't Wasting the Fuel Now That the Gas All Passes Through a Meter.

Monday's Mt. Vernon News gave a column of space to the Ohio gas supply calling attention to the wanton waste of gas at Findlay, Celina and other towns which now wish they had been more economical in the use of natural gas. In conclusion the paper says:

"Mt. Vernon, Utica, Newark and towns in central Ohio now enjoying a great supply of gas from the Knox-Licking field should learn a lesson from the experience of the western Ohio towns and should practice strict economy in the use of this luxury. While it is true that strong wells are being drilled in almost weekly in this field it is fully as true that the supply will not last forever. Not a single foot of gas should be wasted. Each consumer should take as much pains in saving the supply as though it meant a fortune to him. In comparatively few years, unless the extraordinary happens, the gas will be exhausted and coal and wood will have to be resorted to for fuel and coal-oil lamps will have to be dug out of the cellars. Today the supply of gas in Mt. Vernon is envied by the citizens of hundreds of other Ohio towns and the development of the field has brought thousands of dollars into the county through lease rentals and money paid to drillers. Do you take pride in being a fuel saver?"

For the enlightenment of our Mt. Vernon friends it may be said that no natural gas is being wasted in Newark. They need have no sleepless nights over fear that Newark is consuming gas in a reckless way. Let our Mt. Vernon neighbors remember that all gas consumed in Newark goes through meters and that for every 1,000 feet of fuel burned the consumer pays 15 cents. Newark people have learned to be quite economical with their fuel.

SOME DANGER OF FLOODS

Portsmouth, O., Feb. 23—The incessant rains of the past 26 hours have caused the Scioto and Ohio rivers to rise rapidly. Many of the smaller streams have left their banks in many places, causing serious damage. The Scioto rose three feet Sunday night. The Ohio is bank full of heavy ice and ice and navigation is suspended.

SCHOOLBOYS AVERT WRECK.

Defiance, O., Feb. 23—Edward and Charles Kinnner, boys, while coming to town Monday to attend the Telegraph school, found a broken rail on the Wabash railroad. One stood guard while the other ran to the depot, arriving there just 10 minutes before the first line was due, and made known their discovery. The train was held until the break was repaired.

SPRING-TIME NEED OF REXALL MUCU-TONE

Often have people come into our store for something to "brace them up." People who say they haven't catarrh, and who follow our suggestion to take Rexall Mucu-Tone, in a very doubtful manner.

They invariably come back, not for their money which we have always guaranteed to return in cases of dissatisfaction—but to speak in the most appreciative terms of this wonderful remedy, and to thank us for having urged them to take it.

These people think they are merely run down and out of sorts—think they want a tonic. In reality they are suffering with Systemic Catarrh—a form of the disease where the catarrhal congestion is scattered throughout the whole body.

This is why we recommend Rexall Mucu-Tone, a catarrh cure which we know will cure every form of catarrhal disorder, a nutritive tonic, body builder and blood purifier, which is winning the highest praises all over the country. It cleanses the mucous membranes of the body, driving out the poisons and building up the wasted tissues. Because Mucu-Tone does this, it is the ideal spring tonic.

"After suffering four weeks with an aggravated catarrhal cold, which kept me awake nights, not receiving any benefit from my family physician or other remedies, I purchased a small bottle of Mucu-Tone; within 48 hours I was greatly relieved and in less than a week entirely cured."

"I give this testimonial unsolicited, wishing others to know of this valuable remedy. Yours truly, HENRY E. HUTCHINSON."

Henry E. Hutchinson, elected recently chairman of Group VII, of the New York State Bankers' Association, is the president of the Brooklyn Bank. He has been a resident of Brooklyn since 1869, and became cashier of the institution with which he is still connected in 1877, succeeding to the presidency in 1890.

Other spring medicines thin the blood and stimulate the liver, but they do not touch the seat of the trouble. Rexall Mucu-Tone does.

The very first dose of Mucu-Tone will brace you up, while three or four weeks of it, "tablespoonful three times a day," will make you feel like a new person—will rebuild your whole system, making you fairly bubble over with the good spirits and buoyant vigor of perfect health.

If you are feeling badly, if you are afraid you are going to be sick, if you are run down and miserable generally, buy a bottle of Mucu-Tone to-day. If it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel better than you have in many years, we will promptly refund your money. Sold only at our store. Large bottles, 89 cents.
